

I am a Research Fellow with a PhD (International Doctorate) from Deusto Business School, University of Deusto, Spain. My research centers on collaborative governance, public innovation, strategic management, and leadership. I have published in peer-reviewed journals, with additional manuscripts in progress, and completed an international research stay at Radboud University, the Netherlands. With nearly 15 years of professional experience in public administration – including senior leadership roles and diplomatic nominations – I combine practical policy experience with rigorous academic research.
